Washington, D. C., February 23.—There was great excitement in and around Willard's Hotel last evening. The prolonged session of the National Democratic Committee, and the incertainty surrounding the contest for today, gave politicians plenty to talk about, and there were little caucuses and conventions being held in the hotel lobby all through the evening. Meantime, the memdeath of Thompson of New York and wilson of Maine were adopted, and the committee adorned.

St. Louis headquarters was W. L. Scott of Pennsylvania, the strongest friend of the Administration in the Committee. It was a disappointment to the Representatives of the Administration in the Committee to see July selected as the month for the Convention. It would have suited the friends of the Administration in the committee to have had May 22nd, selected, June 10th would have been late enough for them. When the committee adjourned last evening the friends of the President took new hope and set to work to remedy the mistakes of yesterday's session. Mr. Scott was the most active member of them all. He was Louis influence would be thrown in favor of a change of date, he man, presented a beautiful bunch of roses to Mayor Francis, the mascot of St. Louis. The vote for June 6 was 29 to 17.

Senator Gorman, when asked by the Post-Disparch that a suitable reception be given to the St. Louis and the choice of an earlier date had any significance, said: "It has none, We made the best fight we could for San Francisco and when we found we could not get it I got up and said that as the Eastern people did not think they could stand the expense of a trip to the Pacific alope, we had better go to St. Louis."

W. L. Fordyce of Arkansas, who voted for a congratulatory telegram was sent to the delegation at the headquarters at Washington. Later, WORRISON FEELS SORE.

Col. Wm. R. Morrison was asked by the Post-Dispatch correspondent how the choice of locality and date suited him.

'Oh, well enough,' he said, 'St. Louis is only twenty miles from Waterloo.'

'Do you think the choice of St. Louis will make any difference in the result?'

'I don't think it will affect it one jot. It is not a question of politics, but of who sells the bread and butter and whisky. It is a compliment to a city and an advertisement for it, that is all. If the convention had gone to San Francisco I would not have cared.''

'What do you think of the choice of June 5, instead of July 2?''

'"I would have favored a later date.''

"They claim that the party needed mere time to work out the tariff question?''

"The country has been working that out for one hundred years, and one hundred years from now it will still be working it out.''

"What effect will the choice of St. Louis on the nomination?''

"None at all.''

heads of departments hurried to the Executive headquarters to learn more particularly how it was done. Ed Devoy, who was mistaken for a Hendricks Association man, was caught in a circle of officials, who insisted on being given new piedges that that organization would raise that $10,000 within its own ranks for the entertainment of the convention. The jollification over the good news was widespread throughout the city. Up-town the arrival of the "extras" giving the good news was awaited with impatience. At an Olive street lunch room, where the stock of extras gave out, the proprietor obligingly pasted his own paper on the door and an eager crowd gathered while a man nearest to the paper, read the news aloud, after which he gave way to make room for a new crowd and a new reader. Mr. Tony Faust invited his guests to join him in drinking to the health of the St. Louis delegation and the success of the convention. The toast was drunk with a good will by all the guests. At the telephone exchanges the operators put in a lively two hours shifting the wires over which the news of St. Louis' good luck appead to all parts of the city.

Later, Secretary Lane and several members of the Hendricks Association called to lay before the Acting Mayor the same suggestion. It was decided to call a meeting of Democrats at the Southern Hotel this evening to make arrangements for the reception. The delegation will be met at Union Depot by a committee of citizens. The details of the reception will be arranged this evening, but it has already been decided that nothing less than a full brass band will give proper expression to the sentiments of the committee at the reception of the delegates on the arrival of the car at Union Depot. It has also been suggested to escort the delegation to the new hall of the Hendricks Association at Thirteenth and Olive streets, where a lunch will be spread, but it is doubtful whether the new hall will be sufficiently large to accommodate the crowd which will participate in the welcome.

It is generally cenceded that this will be a big feather in the Mayor's cap. The movement to secure the convention emenated from Mayor Francis' office, and in all of the arrangements he took an active part. The National Convention will bring all the State politicians to this city, which will be very favorable to the Mayor's gubernatorial candidacy.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.
LONDON, February 23.—I would advise American readers not to attach too great importance to the so-called public opinion which will be cabled on the subject of the fishery treaty. The fact is that English politicians, either in the press or in Parliament, know little or nothing of the subject. Moreover, as it afdeeply concerned. Thus a nice opportunity is afforded for the friends and enemies of Chamberlain to condemn or exalt him for his share in the negotiations. Men like Jesse Collings, Chamberlain's henchman in Parliament, were quite ready on the receipt of the bare news that the treaty was signed to glorify the success of the British Commis-sioner, although for anything they then knew he might have surrendered everything in dispute unconditionally. The Times to-day remarks that the success of the treaty depends on the reception it meets in Canada. If anything is needed to show the apathy on the subject here it would be afforded by the Daily News' remarks that the whole matter is a mere squabble over petty details. The Liberal organ is not usually wanting in sympathy with the off. The Daily News, however, does not fail to express admiration for the courage of President Cleveland and condemn the factious

LABOUCHERE'S TACTICS.

Labouchere, by his tacties in moving the amendment to the address praying for assur-ance that no compact had been made by En-gland to assist Italy in case of war with France, has succeeded in extracting more definite assurance from the Government. Uneasiness in the public mind was caused by the reported speech of Admiral Hewitt at Genoa, saying he hoped the Italian and English fleets before long would be united in a common object, and, secondly, by the vague, ambiguous assurance of the Government, although it has been notorious that the relations between Italy and France are by no means cordial. Fergusson produced a telegram from Hewitt, denying the authenticity of the report of his speech, and made the assurance that there was no such undertaking hostile to France, whereupon, at the suggestion of A Bad Night for the Royal Sufferer-To-Gladstone, the amendment was withdrawn. Gladstone paid a marked compliment to Salisback-handed compliment, for, since released from Beaconsfield's controlling influence. in a letter written last December by Salisbury's secretary, Gunton. The Government refused a committee of inquiry on the ground that Bradlaugh had a remedy in the law courts. Bradlaugh thereupon wrote to his solicitor asking whather Salisbury took the responsibility for publishing the letter. The solicitor replied that Salisbury refused to admit his responsibility. Bradlaugh said amid loud cheering from the Opposition, that no further step was now needed to vindicate his character. Even the Times thinks Salisbury ought to apologize and say his secretar wrote it without his authority. There is no doubt, however, from the phraseology of the letter that it was written at Salisbury's dicta-

London—The Murderer Indicted. view Russia regarded the events that have occurred in Bulgaria since Prince Alexander abdicated the throne. Prince Ferdinand's arrival and his foreible assumption of princely power intringed upon the Berlin treaty. For this reason Russia refused to recognize the legality of Prince Ferdinand's rule and tried to induce the other Cabinets to unanimous desire to terminate the existing alarming condition of affairs, whose root is more specially traceable to the ambiguous situation in Bulgaria, Russia considered it her duty to again try to obtain from the Powers nothing of the subject. Moreover, as it af-fects Canada, not England, they are not deeply concerned. Thus a pice opportunity the legal status in Bulgaria. The natural consequences of such a declaration by the Powers must be the making of representa-tions at Constantinople to induce the Sultan to convince the Bulgarian people that the person now bearing the title of Prince is not their legal ruler, but merely a robber of power. According to Russia's views, the initiative for such declarations belongs to the Sultan, whose sovereign rights the illegality at Sofia immediately affects.

WITHOUT ANTICIPATING THE FUTURE, and in order to dispel any doubts concerning Russia's objects and intentions, it is un-necessary to conceal the mode of action which she is firmly resolved to adopt in the event of the removal of the relations causing a continnance of the crisis. Bulgaria owes her existence to Russia's sacrifices and efforts. Russia, therefore, alone continues to sympathize with her and grieve at her trials. Russia is equally aloof from prejudice and partiality. She does not think it compatible with her dignity to interfere in Bulgaria's internal disputes, yet she does not entertain the idea of making any one responsible for the past. Russia will consider an avowal of aberrations as a pledge of a change for the better. Russia solely desires Bulgaria's welfare and will, after the usurper's removal, await the first sincere declaration of the Bulgarians through their representatives, in order to consign the pas to oblivion and provide for the re-establish ment of relations based upon mutual confidence. In this Russia has no intention to prejudice in any way the liberty of the Bulgarians, which the treaty secured to them in all international affairs."

Notes in the Circuit Court. The Whittier cases were called up this morning in the United States District Court. This is the Government prosecution of the medical specialists, James, Olin D. and Willspecialists, James, Olin D. and William Whittler, for sending obscene literature through the mails in the form of 'marriage guides' to young gifls. The counsel for the prosecution had prepared for trial, and they expected to show that several of these pamphiets had been mailed from the Whittler exablishment to addresses of young ladies residing in Illinois. When the jury passed into the box, however, the Whittlers changed their pien and consented to a verdict of guilty, which was rendered accordingly. The Court deferred sentence until Monday morning, and in the meantime they were placed on their own recognizance in the sum of $1,000 each. They also surrendered to the Government the complete stock of marriage guides, together with all the plates, etc.

THE STORTS BROTHERS AGAIN. jeff D. Fined $300 and Brock Locked Up for Fighting. The Storts brothers are again candidates for notoriety. The case against Jefferson Davis Storts, the elder and more distinguished brothwith running a saloon without a license, was set for trial by jury in Judge Cady's court at 11 o'clock this morning. At that hour the long-legged son of Shannon County, who had previously made application for a mew judge to try the case on the ground that Judge Cady had expressed an opinion in the case and was prejudiced in the matter, filed a motion for a new judge on the same grounds. Acting Mayor Allen had previously refused to appoint a new judge, and the ceurt this morning overruled the motion of Storts. Then the latter remarked that he would not put in an appearance and waiked out of the court room. A fine of the court room. A fine of the court room. A fine of the court room was entered in the case by default. By letting its to by default. By letting its to by default. Unless he can secure an appeal bond and take an appeal the execution will be ordered to issue against him. If the fine is not paid he will be arrested and sent to the Work-house to serve it out. It is not generally believed that he is in shape to pay his ilcense, and as there is little chance of his gaining the suit on an appeal, it looks very much as if it will simmer down to a question of whether he will go to the rock pile or leave the city.

RROTHER BROEK'S FIGHT.

A short time after the case of his brother had been disposed of Brock Storts, who also has legal pretensions, entered the court and stated that he desired to surrender on her bond Neilie Davis, a woman of the town, for whom he was attorney. The Court asked if he was the bondsman and Brock replied that he was not, Paul Kempf, the Saloon-keeper across the street, being the man. He was informed by the Court that Mr. Kempf was the person to surrender the woman on her bond. Jack Hays, a sort of sgent for Kempf, here stepped up, said he did not want to give the woman up on her bond. The court ordered that the bond should stand unless Mr. Kempf himself wanted to give her mp. The action of Hays angered Storts and outside the court-room the twe commenced wrangling. They walked out of the building, where they came to blows, but neither had done any damage up to the time four lussy blue coats arrived and gathered them in. Hays was immediately balled out by Kempf and resumed his old position on a beer keg in frost of the latter's saloon, while the unfortunate Brock was permitted to keep the cockroaches company for some time in a calaboose dungeon cell. It seems that the woman had not paid Storts his fee, and, although she promised to do so at 50 'clock this evening, he was unwilling to wait that long and wanted to force payment by surrendering her on her bond.

Possibly the greatest amount of capital ever the presented at an auction sale in St. Louis was ready for investment at the Fair Grounds this morning when Dorris & Colvin's Circus was sold by the receiver, Rufus J. Delano. The birous had been a jonah to its proprietors. It belonged to John B. He contracted heavy bills for printhot pay. The printing companies then backed make money and pay them. In this they were disappointed. So last spring they induced E. B. Colvin to join with Mr. Dorris and put the show on its feet again, agreeing that if they could make it pay their claims they would release all the property to them. The circus was started out for the season with Mr. Colvin's money and went through twelve States, ending a disastrous season in Texas. So large was the show it

The house was left in charge of the servants and they sat in the sitting-room. About 9 o'clock the nurse, having put the baby to sleep, started up-stairs with it, and when half way up was terrified by seeing a man standing at the head of the landing. He drew a revolver and fired, but not with the intendition of killing the girl, as the builted lodged in the wall some distance from her. The robber and a companion who was in one of the rooms at the time the shotwas fired, then rushed down the back stairs and made their escape. A lady's gold ring and brooch were the only articles of value found to be missing.

There is no part of the suburbs of St. Louis that is at present attracting so much attention as that section lying adjacent to the steam division of the Cable Bailroad, west of Union avenue. It is still in the memory of the few residents dependent upon the old "Narrow-gauge" for transportation, its great irregularity and frequent abandonment of trains. Indeed, it was then an exception when a train left the depot on time, and after having left it seldom reached its destination. This now is entirely changed. The present management of the road has supplied the best rolling stock and with superior accommodations, double-tracked the road beyond Cabanne Station and regular trains every half hour the influence having been shown in the rapid building up of the additions laid out between Union, De Hodamont, Olive street and Page avenue. NEURALGIA.

Nerves.—Were it possible to observe the misery of the world in some concrete form, nothing ever conceived would surpass its horrors. Every one of the thread-like nerves have each a latent power to cause excruciating pain, the limit of which is simply the limit of human endurance. Think of the toothache, with a single little nerve at work to drive one crazy; think of Neuralala, with a few of these fibrous torments all pulsing painfully at once, and then reflect that at the same moment thousands, tens of thousands, perhaps millions, are suffering alike.

CHARACTERISTICS.

CHARACTERISTICS. CHARACTERISTICS.

Sabtile Pain.—Neuralgic affections are perhaps the most pronounced in the enormous list of aches and pains. Nothing is so subtile in its approach; nothing so flagrant, acute and distressing, and certainly nothing, all the world admits, yet discovered, so completely subdues its ravages and so permanently conquers its pangs as that above mentioned.

SYMPTOMS. SYMPTOMS.

Symptoms.—Neuralgia is defined to be a nerve disease, the chief symptom of which is a very acute pain, intermitting, which follows the course of the nerve branch affected, and which seems therefore to be seated in the nerve. The general symptoms are: Soreness along the nerve; pains alternating between an ache and acute pain. Arising from a disordered stomach, it is often attended by vomiting.

TREATMENT. Treatment.—Apply ST. JACOBS OIL frequently, gently rubbing the afflicted parts, apply to the whole extent of the nerve soreness; keep up a gentle friction until a burning sensation is produced. Avoid sudden change of temperature.

From about the 3d to the 17th of June St. Louis will swarm with visitors from all parts of the Union, one week the National Democratic Convention and the next week the National Saengerfest. Even after a "combine" of all her competitors had succeeded in fixing the date in the hottest week of the year, July 8, St. Louis got the convention. This is a righteous vindication of our much-slandered summer climate. The subsequent change of date to June 5 would have been made just the same if any other city had been chosen. The July date was merely a trick to get votes against St. Louis, and the fact that it did not win shows that her reputation as a summer resort is at least better than Chicago's.

Their ways and manners differed, however, from those grown familiar in priests, being more business-like and sim-flar to the laity. It is new seven years since the men first settled down in this residence, and until now they have never been heard of outside of the Catholic Church, Yet their mission is one of importance, calculated to arouse anew the zeal of the faithful, and to have a strong influence upon the future of the church. They are members of the Franciscan order, and the title of the home they occupy is the COMMISSARIAT OF THE HOLY LAND. For the last seven centuries all the sacred combs and sanctuaries of the Holy Land have been in the keeping of the members of this order, and the purpose has been to encourage those pilgrimages of the faithful from different parts of the world to the Holy Land which once threatened to drain Europe of its inhabitants, and which have become famous historical events. These priests bear the title of Commissaries of the Holy Land. The head of the branch in New York is the Very Rev. C. A. Vissant. He is an Italian by birth, but he speaks English very well. He said: "We are preparing for a great pilgrimage of American Catholics in the spring of 1888 to the shrines of Palestine and other holy sanctuaries. Our plans are nearly finished, and although we have done little as yet to spread the knowledge of our purpose among Catholics, we have already received application from zealous persons, who are anxious togo. It will be the first of the kind in this country. If it proves successful, as I have every reason to believe it will, we will continue them."

"Do you propose to have them as frequently as in Europe?"

"No," he replied, "it would not do in this country. If does not take so very long to are habitants, and which have become famous

We are not ready now for publication. It is a difficult task to figure out exactly the time for each stop and the exact expense, but when our plans are finished all will be included. The expenses will depend to a certain extent on the number who go. The isrger the party the more rebate will we be able to obtain. We are assisted in our calculations by the fact that the expenses after the caravan arrives in the Holy Land has been figured down with great closeness in previous pilgrimages."

"How will they travel in Palestine?"

"From Jaffa to Jerusalem there are stages, but everywhere else the pilgrims will have to ride on horse or camel back. In the long route the pilgrims will have to take along all that is necessary for camping purposes. We will have to camp out frequently. At many of the shrines and sanctuaries the brothers have their residences with ample accommodations for the caravans that stop there. At other conversation with a Post-Disparch reporter in reference to Indian campaigns, said: "I have been more or less on the plains during the last forty years, and remember the Indians as they were before the railroads entered the country and when the strength of the tribes was unbroken, and they reigned supreme in all places west of the Missouri River not occupied by the few towns and military posts scattered at long distances and through the great section of country. apart through that great section of country. In 1845, when I first went to the West as a brevet second lieutenant, everything west of Eastern Kansas was in the hands of the Indiane and travel in small parties was most positions. and the Platte, three great tribes reigned supreme, the Sioux, the Cheyennes with their allies, the Arapahoes, and the Pawnees. These latter in those days were the bravest and fiercest Indians in the country, but gave the whites' little tutuble, their entire energies being devoted to defending themselves against the two other tribes, who were their implacable enemies. The warfare carried on between these bands was continual and greatly advanced the settlement of the country as their attention was so much occupied with each other that the ontifying settlements escaped comparatively unharmed, the principal depredations being committed upon travelers who attempted to cross the Indian country. But early in the fifties this state of affairs was put an end to. At that time the Pawnees went on a great buffalo hunt, more than half the warriors going toward the Platte for the fall hunt, leaving the rest with the women and children, encamped near the Republican. The Sioux and Cheyennes learning of this, joined forces and eatily one October morning fell in overwhelming force upon the camp on the Republican. A terrible battle ensued, the Pawnees fighting like tigers, but they were overpowered by numbers and the whole band, over 5,000, completely wiped out. Turning north, the Sioux and Cheyennes fell upon the hunting party. Here their success was less complete, but the warriors were dispersed, and since that time the Pawnees who were hunted about the plains like wolves, formed an alliance with the United States to escape other destruction, and ever since have been most valuable assistants to the army.

THE DANGER OF TRAVET.

"But the first result of the defeat of the Pawnees." Maj. Sanger continued, "was to cause travel on the plains to be more dangerous than ever before. The Cheyennes, who, save for their alliance with the Sioux, wore the Ishmeelites of the plains, their hand being against every tribe, were greatly occupied by their wars against the Mountain Utes, with whom they had a fend almost as fiere as that with the chief of the Northern Sloux, made his mark for the first time, and was only checked by the advance of the famous Indian fighter, Gen. Connor, who was the terror of the Northern Indians, at the head of two full cavalry regi-ments. The number of whites killed during this raid was over 2,000, and it seemed as if no one would again venture into a country so exposed to Indian depredations poset to Indian depredations.

THE GOVERNMENT AROUSED.
"But this raid," the Major continued, "was the best thing that ever happened for the West. The Government was aroused by the fearful destruction, and fresh troops were sent to the assistance of the handful, who had hardly been able to hold their own. Strong expeditions were sent out, under Mackangia expeditions were sent out, under Mackenzie in the south, Custer on the central plains and Connor in the north. The Comanches and Kiowas were rapidly brought into subjection by Mackenzie, while Connor drove the Northern Indians to the shelter of the mountains. But the Southern Sloux and Chevannes were not so easily tamed, and the Northern Indians to the shelter of the mountains. But the Southern Sloux and Cheyennes were not so easily tamed, and more than one fierce and bloody fight took place. At last some three thousand were encountered just west of the Indian Territory, and a great victory wos, which brought matters to a close, and successfully terminated the last great struggle for the posession of Kansas and Colorado. More than five hundred Indians were killed or captured, and peace was soon after made, A dramatic incident occurred during this fight, which shows that the savages are not as destitute of chivairy as is generally supposed. Maj. Elliott with haif a troop was cut off from the main body and massacred to a man. After the battle was over their bodies were found, those of the soldiers being scalped and frightfully mangled, but Elliott's scalp being on his head, and save for the fact that his right hand and foot were cut off, his body was untouched. Inquiry among the prisoners as to the cause of this developed the fact that his right hand been so impressed with Elliott's gallant bearing that they thought it a pity so brave a man should be kept from the happy hunting grounds, and had therefore spared his scalp, no scalped man, according to their belief, being able to go to heaven. But in order to protect themseives in the other world from so dangerous an enemy, they had cut off his right hand and foot, so that he could neither strike nor pursue, it being their belief that the spirit suffered from the

Yesterday afternoon a gentleman with a long gray beard was seen going up Olive street near Tenth. Gentlemen with gray beards are not phenomena on that thoroughfare, but there was something unusual about this person. That could be seen at a glance. He was riding a bleycle which he guided among the street cars and wagons with the ease and grace of an expert. A great many persons stopped and wondered who he was. On reaching the asphalt the strange bicyclist put on a spurt and it took some lively pedaling for the reporter to catch up with him. When spurt and it took some lively pedaling for the reporter to catch up with him. When he did so he found that the guess of the surprised individual was correct. The owner of the gray whiskers was a preacher. The gentieman, who at that moment was flying down the Seventeenth street hill past the Second Presbyterian Church, was Rev. Wm. Johnson, pastor of the People's Tabernacle, the Congregational Church at Twenty-third street and Clark avenue. Mr. Johnson, who is nearly 50 years of age, is the minister who is stirring up that part of the city by the use of charcoal sketches in his sermons and to whom the uniqueness of his illustrative methods has given the sobriquet of the "charcoal evangelist." He has been in St. Louis only a few months, but his great success at the Tabernacle has given him a sudden prominence in local ministerial choice. He came here from Cleveland, O., where he was a widely-known pastor for many years. It was there he learned to ride a bloycle, as the reporter found as they went rolling out the asphalt together toward Grand avenue.

"Yes," said Mr. Johnson, puffing after a sharp dash to get past a rather speedy team, "I took to the bicycle a year ago last August. The facilities for riding in Cleveland are very great, more seductive even than those of St. Louis, and after learning to ride, which I was led to do for my health, I kept right on."

"Were you not considered somewhat of a rara avis by your ministerial brethren?"

"No, indeed, for the very good reason that many of the leading pastors of the city are riders as well as myself. Some of them, too, are enthusiasts."

"Mention a few."

"Well, there is Rev. Charles S. Pomeroy, D. D., about 80 years of age, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, the wealthiest in the city. Then there are Rev. W. M. Smith of the First Presbyterian, who is a real outand-out enthusiast; Rev. H. M. Tenney of the Madison Avenue Congregational, Rev. Mr. Gaston of the North Presbyterian, Rev. M. M. Curtis of the Beckwith Methodist, Rev. R. E. Macduff of St. Mary's Episcopal, Rev. Mr. Hickox, Presbyterian, and others. These pastors are all widely known in Cleveland and throughout that portion of the country. I have no doubt that their brethren in St. Louis know their standing in the religious world. With such company, of course, it was delightful to pursue the sport. Besides these ministers Secretary Goodman of the Cleveland Y. M. C. A. is a lover of the wheel. Rev. Wm. E. Moore of Virden, Ill., formerly of Girard, Pa., who induced me to begin riding, is a devotee of cycling, and I think that as soon as the roads get good I shall take a spin over to Virden, about twenty miles or so, to see him," said Mr. Johnson as unconcernedly as if he were arranging to take a stroil down town.

A SURPRISED OLD LADY.

miles or so, to see him," said Mr. Johnson as unconcernedly as if he were arranging to take a stroil down town.

"When you began to ride did any of your parishioners object?"

"Oh, not many. There was one old lady, one of the best members of my church, who said when she heard of it: 'Ishail never go to hear Mr. Johnson preach again if he rides a wheel.' It happened she was the first one I visited on the wheel. I rode right into her yard and dismounted at her door. She was standing at the window and she rushed to the door saying: 'Is that the wheel? Well, well, that is just the nicest thing for a minister to have.' That came to be the sentiment of all. They found that my sermons were better than they formerly were, because my health improved, because I was out of doors so much and I have discovered since I have been riding that the most potent stimulus for effective brain work is not the close atmosphere of the swelling musclees, the deep respirations, the quickened action of the heart."

"Then the wheel has done you good?"

"Why," he said blowing out a great breath, "it thrills me. I can ride ten miles with less fatigue than I can walk two, and when I come back I am not tired either. I am nicely warmed and exhitarated. A minister who has led a physically easy or lazy like will be a new man after a few wisely taken rides. He will feel as if he had just wakened out of a Rip Van Winkle sleep. I have heard this minister and that, wherever I have been, complaining of this and that aliment, little trifing affections that would disappear with a little brisk exercise. I was up at the great Bible Conference at Niagara Falis last summer, and fortunately had my wheel with me. There were about 400 preachers present, but I was the only one that had a wheel. So, during the few days we were there. I was spinning all over the adjacent country while they were compelled to mope around the town. Many of those pastors went back to their homes with the expressed intention of getting a wheel."

"Have you taken many long rides?"

back to their homes with the expressed intention of getting a wheel."

"Have you taken many long rides?"

"Not often. I have ridden out 38 miles into the country of an afternoon, but not often. It is an annillator of urban distances, and with the bleycle a parishioner ten blocks away is practically next door. Most of the Cleveland pastors use the wheel for pastoral calling. A very amusing thing happened to Rev. R. E. Macduff, the dignified rector of st. Mary's. He is a tall, distinguished gentlemen, and he was out on his wheel visiting that portion of his parish where the streets were not very good. The sidewalks in Cleveland are of broad flagstones, and the gutters are bridged so that they are a paradise for wheelmen. There was an ordinance against sidewalk riding in the city, but hir. Macduff coming to a muddy street rolled along on the sidewalk. A policeman arrested him. Mr. Macduff refused to give his name, so he was taken to jail. In court he was fined 32. When the fine had been imposed, Mr. Macduff turned to the judge and said: 'Your Honor, I must ride to morrow, as I must visit my parish, and if the streets are muddy what am I going to do when the sidewalk is so good and nobody is walking on ti?' The Judge said he had to enforce the ordinance, but Mr. Macduff was out the next day, riding as happing as ever. Now, no more arrests are made for sidewalk riding, the ordinance being practically a dead letter. All the pastors I mentioned as riders do not use the bloycle, some preferring the tricycle; but that makes no difference with them. they are just as enthusiastic whether three-wheelers or two-wheelers. They do not belong to any clerical club, but are nearly all members of the League of American Wheelmen. They meet on appointed days intormally, and take a nice run out into the country of twelve or fifteen miles. I know of many more ministers who were about to bay wheels last fall, and I wouldn't be surprised if next year nearly all the pastors of Cleveland were riding wheels.

"The sconland the fifte of th ing of seasts, and with Lindell boulevard and Forest Park so convenient, the wonder grows that none of the ministers have taken advantage of these splendid physical opportunities. But I am confident that a misapprehension is keeping them back. Probably they imagine that they will iose in dignity. Let me say that is a mistake. I do not think that there is a cycling clergyman in Cleveland who will say that he has dropped a single inch in the estimation of any person whose opinion is worth having. They have lost nothing, and on the contrary have gained health, renewed youth and happiness."

Peculiar Charge Which the Eloquence

John L. Martin Failed to Meet. Simon Fox, a runner for a clothing house on Fourth and Olive streets, was tried before Judge Cady this morning on a charge of loiterng. He was arrested for loitering in front of a clothing store on Broadway, between Pine and Olive streets. Mr. Jones of the Times Clothing House and Mr. Kirtland, an employe of F. W. Humphrey & Co., testified that the defendant was in the habit of standing in front of those establishments for hours at a time and stopping customers who were about to enter the places, telling them they could do better at another store and taking them to a rival establishment where he received a commission. Three police officers also testified to Fox being in the habit of standing in front of clothing stores and robbing customers. The defendant claimed he was in the employ of Nathan & Sumpter, Fourth and Olive streets, and Mr. Nathan testified to the same effect, stating that the defendant received a regular salary from the house. John I. Martiu, who defended him, made a lengthy speech in which he spoke of the prosecution as a petty jeolousy on the part of other stores, and characterized the runner system as a commendable live-business method of the order which made Chicago and other cities great. If there was a little more of it displayed in St. Louis this city would become a great city like Chicago and other places.

When Mr. Martin had finished Judge Cady calmly remarked: "There is a great deal of bumcombe, but not much law in your remarks, Mr. Martin. If Mr. Nathan had runners from rival stores standing in front of his establishment to take away customers who were about to enter his store, I think he would ecomplain about as loudly as anybody. I fine the defendant $\frac{1}{2}$ and costs."

An appeal was taken. of F. W. Humphrey & Co., testified that the

WENDELL PHILLIPS. Movement by Citizens of Boston to Erect

a Memorial. By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH. was started yesterday to erect a memorial to the memory of Wendell Phillips. The move-ment was inaugurated by two meetings in Tremont Temple under the auspices of the Wendell Phillips Hall Association. The first meeting was attended by delegates from labor organizations, who formed a society for raising funds. The evening meeting was largely attended and was addressed by Gen. Butler and others. Gen. Butler made the speech of the evening. He eulogized Phillips and claimed that the war of the rebellion was principally sustained and governed by Massachusetts, which was inspired by the voice and pen of Phillips. He advocated the building of the memorial by the voluntary mites of the workingmen of America, who he said could do it by contributing a penny apiece and not miss it. He was opposed to any subscription of more than $5 from any one person. Gen. Butler introduced a little politius into his speech and advocated the sending of more soldiers to Congress. The meeting was a great success and will, it is believed, greatly promote the fund for the memorial building, which is to be consecrated to the needs of the public, where any labor or reform organization can obtain hall room at a mere nominal rental.

Bowlin Green, Mo., February 23 .- Pandemonium in miniature was represented at the African M. E. Church last night. A protracted meeting, which has been in progress for several months, was brought to an abrupt con-clusion by a disagreement among the sisters. While the minister was entering upon his nineteenthly and lastly, Miss Fannie Wallace, with a bound and a yell, landed in the middle of the startled congregation and, drawing a cowhide, proceeded to give Miss Cora Hen-drick a most unmerciful flogging. The fight soon became general, and bangs, bludgeons and anathemas filled the air for an hour, to the disgust and disturbance of all the citizens within several blocks of the temple of worship.

It was a game of stud-horse, poker that was being played in the room.

Abrupt Separation After Ten Years— Habeas Corpus Proceedings by a Father— Attachments in Connection With the Graff-Beunett Failure—Damage Suits on Trial To-Day-An Industrial Brother hood to Be Incorporated.

A petition for divorce was entered in the Circuit Cours to-day by William E. Ward against Emma E. Ward. They were married in Jackson County on the 18th of July, 1877. They lived together for ten years. Mr. Ward alleges that he treated his wife with kindness and affection, and did everything in his power to make her happy and comfortable, but in July last year she left him and went back to her father. He sought an interview, but she refused to talk except in the presence of others. He could get no satisfaction, although he promised to do anything that his wife might suggest to meet her wishes, and he offered to locate in any place that she chose providing that they could be united again. He alleges, however, that his wife would not listen to anything and even threatened to have him arrested if he worried her any more. After that he ceased to call.

To Recover His Daughter.

A habeas corpus petition was entered to-day in the Circuit Court by F. Schellheuser, who seeks to recover possession and control of his daughter Clara, aged 4 years. He alleges that she is restrained by the mother, Eva Sohell-houser, at 912 North Nineteenth street, and further states that Mrs. Schellhouser left ber home without any cause or provocation on his part. He alleges in support of his pettion for the child that the mother is not fit to be entrusted with its care.

Street-Crossing Perils.

A jury was called in Judge Valliant's Court, to-day, for trial of the damage suit brought by L. A. Clarke, against the Cable & Western Raliroad Company. Mr. Clarke was a passenger on a cable car coming down town on the lists of last April, from his residence on Garrison and Easton avenues. At the corner of Testh and Locust streets Mr. Clarke desired to alight and the car was stopped. As he endeavored to pass around the rear car the grip car of a west-bound car struck him violently in the back and knocked him under the wheels of the east-bound car. It was a miraculous escape from death, but as it was, Mr. Clarke sustained severe bodily injuries and was confined to his room for several weeks. The shock to his nervous system was very great and he was unable to attend to business for some time. He claims $2,600 damages on the ground of the negligence of the gripman of the car coming in the opposite direction. He is represented by Chas. M. Napton and Mortimer F. ### CHAT OF THE STAGE.

indusprential in distance anything this country, or perhaps lany country, has ever known. It will be greater in comedy than Booth and Barrett are in tragedy. His idea is to bring together in one company for a tour of the country the fol-lowing stars: Joseph Jefferson, W. J. Flor-ence, Stuart Robson, William Crane, Clara Morris and Mrs. John Drew. A repertoire would be selected in which all of these artists could be given opportunities and brought in con-junction. Think, for instance, of such a company in "The Rivals," with Mr. Jefferson as Bob Acres, Florence as Sir Lucius and the others disposed suitably. Mr. Jefferson pro-poses to have the company filled out with the very best supporting talent that can be ob-tained. He is in earnest and is already at work on his plan. He says that his father is willing to go into it, so is Mr. Florence, and he has talked with Messrs. Crane and Rob-Miss Morris, and they speak favorably of the scheme. It is one of Clara Morris' dreams to act with Mr. Jefferson, and this may bring her consent. There is no doubt about the superb-ness of the proposed organization or its artistic value, or that it would make money. The audiences yesterday at the theaters, owing in large measure to the fact that it was a holiday, rather broke the records. The Olympic was packed. Every seat was taken and the space back of the seats was filled with men, women and children, who stood during the entire performance of "A Dark Secret." It was the banner house and hundreds were turned away from the door. Minnie Paimer gave no matinee, but enough people were turned away from the Grand to make a large audience. There was an immense house also at the People's for the "White Slave," a fine audience at Pope's and another good one at the Standard. Altogether it was a great day for the theaters, and the evening was not far behind the afternoon.

There are few plays which make the record of "The White Slave," now at the People's. This is the seventh week it has been in St. Louis under the management of Harry Kennedy, and it is playing to good business. This continued success is due in large measure to skillful handling so that the public never got an overdose of the play, and the company has kept up to about the same standard. Mr. Kennedy, however, expects to enlarge his sphere of operations and will produce a new play in April. This is a melodrama founded on incidents of New York life by Charles Gayler, and is entitled, "Lights and Shadows." It has been tried on the "dog" twice and the "dog" jumped at it, so that Mr. Kennedy is confident of success. The present company, with the exception of clever Miss May Newman who goes with the new company, will continue playing "The White Slave."

George Hosmer is popular with his fellowoarsmen and is making a bit this week with the public. On Tuesday evening Mr. J. A. St.
John and his protege, Mr. Jacob Gaudaur, saw the performance at the Olympic and presented hir Hosmer with a beautiful floral oar. When an oarsman was wanted for the play Hanlon was first spoken to, but had to go to Australia. Then Teemer was approached, but after beating Hanlon his head swelled to such a size that he wanted all the receipts and Hosmer was secured. The management liked him so well thay advanced his salary one-third without the asking a few weeks after his engagement, and he is drawing the neat salary of $75 a week or so for five minutes' rowing.

The members of the St. Louis Lodge of the Theatrical Mechanics' Association had a joilification at their hall Tuesday afternoon, when they presented their examining physician, Dr. A. V. L. Brokaw, with a handsome gold badge of the order. The initials of the order, T. M. A., were formed of diamonds in the badge. Lon Horn made the presentation speech, and he was followed by President John McKibbin, Si Gates and others, and Dr. Brokaw returned his thanks for the compliment.

Young Sothern, who is winning high favor as Jack Hammerton in "The Highest Bidder," is said to be one of the quietest, most retiring young men in the world, who will run at the rustle of a dress-skirt. Yet he is good looking, and is kept in mortal teror by the fair young things who admire him. It is told of him that there was one young lady who determined to meet him whether he would or not, and told her friends of a cuts plan she had formed for the purpose. She applied to the stage manager for the privilege of aciting as the statue in the auction scene, and it was granted. So she made up for the statue, was properly whitened and draped, and took her position on the pedestal. So there came in, and without knowing the game that had been put up on him introduced some new business. He first hung his hat on the statue's hand, and then leaning against it threw his arm around its waist so caressingly that the blushes of the animate Venus nearly showed through the powder, and to cap it all picked up his malies and struck the knee of a stitue a sound thwack. The statue jumped, and turning upon the actor a look of intense scores, to his own intense assonishment hissed "Ton brates" and sgrathering up—her draparier de & Pacific Control-Another Ticket-Broker's Manifesto-General News.

The following Associated Press dispatch was received here to-day: received here to-day:

"ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 23.—Arrangements are being made by the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway for assuming joint management with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe of the Atlantic & Pacific Railway. A commission, consisting of representatives of the three companies mentioned, went over the line of the Atlantic & Pacific on a tour of inspection recently, and it was decided that extensive improvements should be undertaken at once. Vice-President Smith of the Atchison is at present absent from the city, and the other officials of the company have heard nothing as yet of the reported arrangement."

Another Ticket Brokers' Manifesto. The Ticket Brokers' Association is up to its neck in the fight with the Penusylvania road over the proposed bill to cut off their right to sell railroad tickets. The latest circular to sell railroad tickets. The latest circular on the subject was received to-day and indicates that the detective agency alleged to have been employed to make cases against the ticket brokers by selling them crooked goods has been tampering with the circular so the association. A circular was received here yesterday, marked "conspiracy," and was an affirmation as to the suspicions with regard to the means to be employed against the ticket brokers. The circular received to-day, signed by Chairman Lansing, states that the "conspiracy" circular was mailed from Richmond, Va., on February 17, but that not a single copy was received by any member of the association, so duplicates were sent out from the general effice at Louisville. This is a hint that the circulars had been delayed in some way, but the wording does not indicate how.

Members are requested to report at once all connection with the detective agency, and it is stated that any member, having any further intercourse with the agency will be promptly expelled from the association.

The situation in the Northwest is practically unchanged and all the roads having reached a tiations looking to a settlement. The situation is this: The Western and Northwestern Associations appointed a committee to report on the troubles. This committee reported in favor of asking the Southwestern Association to appoint a committee to confer with regard to the amalgamation of the three associations. These three committees will meet next Tuesday to discuss their report, and when it is prepared it will be reported to a joint meeting of all the managers. Many railroad men believe that a new system will have to be devised to meet the emergency and the opinions are freely expressed that legislation on the subject of cutting rates is the only remedy that can be used. tiations looking to a settlement. The situation

Kirksville, February 23.—Several suits were filed in the Circuit Clerk's office yesterday against the new Santa Fe line for work day against the new Senta fee line for work performed on the grade through this county by sub-contractors to enforce laborers' lien under the law. The suits are as follows: Lee, Moss & Co., for the sum of $28,865.90; L. C. Masson & Co., for the sum of $15,695.89; King & Ingalis, for $7,888.41; Scoville, Warkley & Merrill, for $63,998.71; Jos. S. Antonelle, for $62,975.77; Forrest & Helm, for $18,695.89.

SUNDAY'S CYCLONE.

Near Heltman, a little hamlet in that sounty five miles west of Dale, a cyclone for a short distance swept everything in its course, doing great damage. The losses thus dar reported are:

John Eastham, house, barn and all other buildings blown down and his wife fatally injured. She was found buried in the ruins with a sill across her body.

John Perigo had one barn containing grain blown down, and another, also full, completely turned around on its pillars.

John Tools lost his residence and all other buildings, not even a panel being left.

John Hhillips' barn was blown down.

John Hopkins' house and barn were unroofed, and stock killed.

John Avery—House torn down, barn blown down and several hundred dollars' worth of bobacco destroyed.

Wm. Avery—Boof of house gone; barn and sther buildings demolished.

William Hopkins—Dwelling overturned.

After passing those farms the cyclone seemed to rise, and no further damage was done except to timber and fences, a considerable quantity of valuable timber being uprooted for quite a distance. Feople were thrown into a panie for a time. There is considerable distress in the heighbor-hood.

THE MOUNT VERNON FUND,

Subscriptions Coming In-Reports of the Committees To-Day.

Subscriptions to the fund for the relief of the sufferers by the Mt. Vernon disaster are coming in fast. Mr. F. G. Cockereil, one of the most prominent attorneys of Belleville, was taken and dealy ill this morning, and it was feared for a time that his sudden attack was likely to result seriously. Dr. Perryman pronounced his illness an attack of neuralgia of the spine, and did not consider it serious. This afternoon Mr. Cockereil had so far recovered as to allay all apprehension of danger.

Collector Barnum Announces He Will Not Help Enforce Local Option.

Since the local option law has been adopted in the different counties of the State a curious result has occurred in the office of internal Revenue Collector Barnum. Appeals of all kinds have come in to help the local authoridecided that extensive improvements should be undertaken at once. Vice-President Smith of the Atchison is at present absent from the city, and the other officials of the company have heard nothing as yet of the company have heard nothing as yet of the company which is referred to in this dispatch is one which has existed for three years at least. Of the Atlantic & Facilic's stock 50,000 shares were held in trust, and the Seligmans contincided $2,000 shares, but the entire food was turned over to the joint control of the 'Frisco and Accison several years ago, to run in the interest of the two companies. The Atchison now has a connection with the A. & P. at Albuquerque, and the 'Frisco is now contemplating making an extension through Indian Territory to Albuquerque, as described in the Post-Dispatch some time ago. The 'Frisco engineers are now going over the proposed extensions. The 'Frisco now has a line running 150 miles into Indian Territory and the plan is to extend this on to Albuquerque. The bill which is now in Congress to cut off the Western part of Indian Territory and form it into a new territory for set element, will affect the building of the line to some extent, as in that case a fine section of country will be thrown open for development, and there will be a chance for the road to do local business.

The commission referred to in the dispatch consists of General Manager Morfill of the Atchison, who are now going over the line of the A. F. for the purpose of recommending whatever repairs and improvements may be necessary to put the road in first-class shape for transcontinental business.

The sheriff this afternoon under the attachment The sheriff this afternoon under the attachment writs, mentioned in snother column, against the firm of Graff, Bennett & Co., levied upon the establishment, 942 North Second street. The attaching creditors are the Minnesota Iron Company for $16,524 and Andrew Carnegie & Co. $23,-156,97. The note-heads of the Second street establishment bear the name of the Pittsburg firm as dealers in iron merchandise and also the names of M. J. Lippman and E. C. Robbins of St. Louis. A protest was entered to the levy here, but the Sheriff took possession. Many legal complications will arise in this matter.

GOTHAM SOCIETY SCARED.

Bold Thief Snatches Mrs. Hamersly's $30,000 Necklace From Her Throat.

By Telegraph to the Post-Disparch. NEW YORK, February 23.—A remarkable story of outrage and robbery is agitating society. It is the common talk of the clubs. as that Mr. Wm. W. Cryder, President of the Madison Square Rink, gave a dinner party last week. The guests were on hand rather promptly with the exception of Mrs. Louisa C. Hamersly, who recently succeeded party last week. The guests were on hand rather promptly with the exception of Mrs. Louisa C. Hamersly, who recently succeeded in sustaining her deceased husband's will, involving some $5,000,000 of property. The company waited until $ilb and were in the midst of the hors d'oevres when Mrs. Hamersly was unsidered in very much agitated and disturbed. The seat of honor to the right of her host gave her the opportunity to immediately publish the cause of her delay.

"As I passed down to my carriage," said she, "I noticed a fellow loitering near the stoop. The night was warm and my donner wrap was loose at the throat. I slipped into the carriage and no seoner had my footman closed the door and turned to mount the box when a hand was thrust through the window and my poarl neckiace, valued at over $30,000, was setzed and dragged from my throat. By some chance the feilow's funny-bone struck on the edge of the window and his grip relaxed so that the greater part of the string dropped into the carriage. I screamed and the carriage was immediately stopped. The fellow made off. My servants found most of my pearls in the bottom of the carriage or on the bidewalk. I have offered a large reward in the papers for those which were either carried away or dropped on the street. I have not the slightest idea what my assailant looked like."

THE EXCITEMENT WHICH ENSUED is more easily imagined than described. There was probably about $100,000 worth of jewels about that dinner table, each owner of which pictured a thief standing about a bedside, carriage or opera box awaiting an opportunity to grab. Mrs. Hamersly added fuel to such flame by indicating red marks on her bosom which he wanton thief had left as a birthmark. Of course every man and woman who left the house that night carried away a painful impression of the dreadful possibilities of a great city and an exciting story which could hardly keep over to night. At police headquarters a statement of the case was received with unmistakable surprise. Inspector Byrnes was said to

to hear about it."

Capt. Relily professed entire ignorance of the cocurrence, but when informed that it was the very young, beautiful and rich Mrs. Hamersly who had been robbed, looked suprembly wise and said—nothing. And that is precisely the way the case stands. Every one knows about it and talks about it, but every one expects somebody else to ferret out the facts.

A CRAZY HORSE-TRAINER. He Attempts to Collect an Imaginary Debt

NEW YORK, February 23 .- Michael O'Donnell, who is a horse-trainer on the Guttenburg racetrack, called upon Father Thomas J. Ducev on. He was ushered into the parior and told to wait a minute and the priest would see him. When Father Ducey entered weuld see him. When Father Ducey entered the room he recognized O'Donnell as a man who had broken one of his vestibule windows some weeks before.

"Father," said O'Donnell, "your coachman, Mr. Enright, has told me that you are going to give an entertainment soon to all the coachmen in the city. I want to attend and I thought I would call and get a ticket."

"All right," said Father Ducey, "just walt here a moment while I get you one."

Father Ducey left the room and told Dr. Kelly to go to the police station, and get an officer as there was a man in the parlor who was evidently crazy. The doctor soon arrived with an officer, who arrested O'Donnell. In one of his pockets they found a big revolver. He also carried a loaded cane. In court vesterday when O'Donnell was brought asked the Justice.

"I guess not," said he with a smile.
"He does," said O'Donnell flercely.
"Mayor Hewitt has teld me he owes it to me.
A hundred noblemen have told me he owes it to me.
The dogs in the street know he owes is to me."
The Justice committed O'Donnell.

THE COW QUESTION.

A Novel and Unique Election Held at Mer-

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCE CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., February 23,-Perhaps one of the most unique elections that has ever occurred in this county was that yesterday at Mercersburg, a town of 1,500 in-habitants, upon the question of whether or not the poor man's cow will be allowed to run at the poor man's cow will be allowed to run at large in the streets during the coming year. By a special act of the Legislature the citizens of that place are empowered at every spring election to vote upon the cow question, and ballots must be marked "For the cow" and "Against the cow." This year the battle of the poor man against the well-to-do man has been fought out bitterly in public meetings and through newspapers, but the poor cow was downed by a majority of twelve votes. So the cow must be cooped up for a year to come. The animal had the satisfaction of seeing both the regular and Democratio ticket go down and a citizens' ticket to control the affairs of the town was sleeted by the cows' supporters.

game in this city have been deeply interested of late in the probable outcome of the fight which is to be made for young Halliday, ed to the Des Moines Club by the Arbitration Commit-tee some months ago. Halliday was a fielder on the had been made by the St. Louis management Halliday telegraphed St. Louis, asking if any money would be advanced him as a guarantee and stating that he was ready to sign. It was considered as settled that the brilliant young fielder would play with the St. Louis team in 1888. Des Moines, however, opened negotiations with Halliday the day after he had sent the telegram in question, or October 20, and on the strength of this claimed a prior right to the fielder's serv ices. There the metter rested until President Von der Ahe had departed for Europe, and while he was sailing on the briny deep, Des Moines came to the front, made its argument to the Arbitration Committee and rested its case. The latter was handled in the most expert manner in the world by Mr. Rogers, who is noted for his deep insight into legal matters, his deep insight into legal matters, and Mr. Byrne of Brooklyn, who is noted for general adroftness. These two got the St. Louis end of the deal between their crushers and emshed it out of existence. Every fairminded oase ball man who has looked into the matter has pronounced the action of these two gentlemen a plain case of robbery. It was the worst sample of open and above-board discrimination on record, not even excepting the famous "squeeze" by which Mr. Lucas was edged out of the National League.

But the case is not entirely settled yet. For the past few days Mr. Von der Ahe has had his lawyers at work on the matter and they assure him that he has a clear case and sure victory shead. A legal advisor will accompany him to New York to attend the meeting of the committee at the Fifth Avenue Hotel early in March and then the case will be fought on its merits. Statements from Haliday will be presented which will have conclusive bearings on the history of the deal, and, from the present outlook, there can be no doubt as to the result.

lyn Club into their ranks, if they see fit, but I don't think they will, with our objections. The reason that they can do so, with or without our objections, is that the five-mile rule, so far as New York or Brooklyn are concerned, was done away with some time ago. For this reason we cannot object to any League clubs playing in Brooklyn during the exhibition season, nor can they object to our playing an Association club during the same time."

"Tip"O'Neill was speaking of the three umpire system the other day. "Great scheme," said he, "and one that will do more to make the spectators satisfied than anything that could be done. There was less kicking in the world's series than in any games I ever saw played. Why, there was no chance for kicking. Every play was judged by a man in position to see the play, and every man knew he was getting a fair show, whether he was running bases or playing his position in the field. No, not half of the players called out at second base are really out, and any second baseman will tell you that he has been credited with a put-out when in reality he did not come within three feet of touching the base runner. The latter knows he is not out and it makes him hot."

As to the necessary qualifications for a good runner. The latter knows he is not out and it makes him hot."

As to the necessary qualifications for a good ball nine, Stagg of Yale, said: "The art of playing together I regard as the most essential, and then comes work at the bat and base running. The latter is very hard to practice until we go on the field, for the resson that men do not like to run and slide along the ground when there is no real incentive for it; and men sometimes get badly hurt in practicing it. Still, the work must be done, and I am trying to devise some scheme that will achieve satisfactory results. I am going to have the men practice free batting, and plenty of it—that is, batting at balls anywhere from the shoulders to the ground. This is a departure from last year's work. They were then taught to practice batting balls between the shoulders, waist and ground. The entire collegiate rules may be changed this year, so that high and low balls may not be called for by the college teams, and consequently the men will have to bat according to the professional League rules. There is some talk that the League rules may be adopted."

failure it probably will be.

Lately there was fooled, under peculiar circumstances, a youngeter on the ranch of W. C. Child, near Helena. One of his fine-bred marcs running in a corral gave birth to a coit on one of the coldest January nights. The thermometer marked 40, and the coit has been named Forty Below. Strange to say, the coit was found to be doing well in the morning, and not frozen even as much as the top of the ear. We hope to see the youngster, make a mark to correspond with his name—Below Forty—as soon as tracked.—[Rocky Mountain Husbandinan.

They arrived there late in the day and on moving up to Herrell's house were met by the proprietor, who hurried off to get his Winchester, but he was 'coyered' and surrendered without a word. He had been sick with the "mumps" and was barely able to move about when he was taken into custody. a fact which duiged in last night at the African Methodist Church between two members. The police were called in, and the offenders were placed but he was "covered" and surrendered without a word. He had been sick with the "mumps" and was barely able to move about when he was taken into custody, a fact which accounts for the quiet conduct he displayed. He hadn't a word to say and was taken to San Antonio, where he was lodged in jail with Ed Reeves. Another pilgrimage was made to a point eighteen miles from Yorktown, Dewitt Co.; where "a plant" was found buried in an oyster can. It consisted of jewelry taken from the Wells—Fargo safes at Fiatonia. None of the remaining four members of the Fiatonia and Moneil gang could be reached, and, with the leading spirits in jail, the authorities gave up the chase for the present. There is little doubt but that the other members of the gang will be in custody before many moons.

The Texas authorities have decided to open up a hard fight on the bands of train robbers. The cases of Reeves and Herrell will be tried in the Federal Courts on charges of having robbed the United States malls. A better plan of campaign has been adopted than this to reach the robbers. In Williamson, Johnson and Frio Counties the authorities have resolved to prosecute every person who is detected aiding or abetting in any way any of the parties published as being participants in any of the robbers or other lilegal act. The object of this is to cut off the supplies of the robbers and to take away from them any chances lof sheltering themselves among their sympathizers. The conditions existing in this section are very similar to those which existed in Clay County during the best days of the James gang, only that the sympathizers are described as infinitely more "esperate men. In all the counties in the vicinity of Capt. Dick, alias Brace Corner's, ranch, the authorities have placed a watch on the suspected friends of the robbers. in jail.

lot of jewelry was captured by the robbers. About the same time a Pacific train was held poor girls, the institution being located at the corner of Eighth and Marion streets and in This last-named job caused considerable excitement. The robbers worked as if they were well trained. On approaching the station they found the telegraph operator on duty and took him off without delay. He was bound and gagged and not trusting to these precautions the robbers tore the instruments from the tables and kicked the battery jars to pieces. When the train came along it was boarded, under the direction of one of the robbers who was addressed as "Capt. Dick." After the robbers completed their work the telegraph operator, over whom one of the gang had been left to guard, was BUNDLED ON BOARD of the train and sent north. This robbery created great excitoment and a reward was offered for the arrest of the gang. To get this reward a job was put up on five men, who were subsequently released. Later the bank at Clisco, Tex., was robbed, $6,000—all the money in the bank—being taken. At the time it was learned that John Barbour and Will Whitley, who had participated in the train robberles, took a hand in the bank job. The robberles were becoming such frequest occurrences that the people of those pertions of Texas selected by the robbers for operation started a reform movement in which heroic remedies were decided on. The Pinkertons went to work on the Gordon and Bend Rock robberies and succeeded in getting three of the robbers into custody. The Furlong service, co-operating with Sheriff Olive of Williamson County and Sheriff Boyd of Johnson County, took up the trails in the McNeil and Flatonia jobs and were rewarded, after a great deal of hard work, by capturing two of the party and ridding Texas and the adjoining territory of the annoying presence of Capt.
